

Clarington promotional products company Promos Canada announced that to fill demand for the golf season, the company has expanded its extensive stock of golf-related business promotional items. The Bowmanville-based company's catalogue now includes an extensive selection of golf products ready for imprinting.

"It's not just about Tiger Woods," said Promos Canada head Alex Subotich. "Golf is still one of the most popular sports for promotion and branding purposes. It possesses a strong association with affluence and business. Promotional golf balls and other golf accessories are an excellent way to get attention from valuable potential clients."

In addition to giving away branded golf clothing and gear, Subotich notes that golf tournaments provide an excellent way to raise brand awareness through promotional items. Companies can get involved in tournaments for charity or recreation, or sponsor them as networking events for businesses. "Golf brings people together, where they'll use the promotional items you provide."

Promos Canada carries a wide variety of golf balls, apparel and equipment, including official PGA tour accessories. To find out more about the golf catalogue, visit www.promoscanada.com/shop/golf-c-26.html
