Post Secondary

University of Ontario Institute of Technology

As one of Canada's youngest, most dynamic universities, the University of Ontario Institute of Technology (UOIT) has developed a reputation for uniquely combining academic knowledge, research opportunities, high-tech learning tools and a vibrant student life. In fact, since opening its doors in 2003, UOIT has received accolades from students and employers alike for its leading-edge education.

UOIT offers everything students need to graduate and fill leadership roles with employers in Durham Region, across the country and even around the world. We offer unique, career-focused undergraduate and graduate programs in areas such as business, criminology, health sciences, the arts, information technology, engineering, education and the sciences. In addition, our commitment to research excellence means you will have plenty of opportunities to pursue research projects that could lead to innovations of global significance.

What's more, UOIT's technology-rich learning environment is unlike anything you've ever experienced before. Starting with laptop computers for all students, our award-winning mobile learning program ensures everyone on campus has equal access to the same technology, resources and services.

And because we understand university days are about more than just time in the classroom, UOIT offers a vibrant student life experience. For example, you can choose from more than 70 student clubs, relax and catch entertainment at the student centre, or stay healthy in body and mind by using our state-of-the-art Campus Recreation and Wellness Centre.

All of this is why students consistently give UOIT top marks in independent surveys about their overall satisfaction, our technology base, opportunity to work closely with professors and much more.
